PROMPT	POINT	ELABORATION/ EXAMPLE
The environmental problem (1) and its effects on the earth (2)	(1) Vast amount of plastic waste (2) Harming Mother Nature and its inhabitants	(1) Oceans and rivers are polluted by plastic products which (2) are dangerous to marine life.
Practical steps students like you can take to combat this problem	(1) Reduce plastic waste is to consume less. (2) Separating and recycling garbage. (3) Reuse plastic containers.	(1) Adopt a minimalist lifestyle. (2) We can lessen the amount of plastic waste in landfills. (3) Reusable shopping bags which are environmentally friendly.
Why these steps are important.	(1) It is our responsibility to adopt habits to reduce plastic waste.	(1) Small actions that may seem insignificant, can make drastic changes to our environment

Irresponsible disposal of plastic waste has been a major concern recently. It is dismaying to know that the vast amount of plastic waste created by humans has been harming Mother Nature and its inhabitants. For example, our oceans and rivers are polluted by plastic products which are dangerous to marine life. We should ponder over what we can do and come up with some pragmatic solutions to tackle this issue.

The simplest way to reduce plastic waste is to consume less. One way is to adopt a minimalist lifestyle. I would also like to highlight the importance of separating and recycling garbage. By doing this, we can lessen the amount of plastic waste in landfills. In addition, we can reuse plastic containers to reduce waste. Undeniably, reusing or upcycling plastic containers can have financial and environmental benefits, because as we all know, plastic products make up a huge amount of solid waste, and take centuries to break down. Furthermore, we should use reusable shopping bags which are environmentally-friendly.

Ultimately, it is our responsibility to adopt habits to reduce plastic waste. We must not be reluctant to change our mindset because the small actions that may seem insignificant, can make drastic changes to our environment. Together, we can heal the Earth.

- what people can learn from the past.
- it’s important for the future
- ...(your own idea)

Write your essay using all the notes and elaborate on your ideas.

Identify and highlight the points and elaboration/example from the sample.

PROMPT	POINT	ELABORATION/ EXAMPLE
What people can learn from the past.	...the importance of it or that it affects our lives today	...our political system would not be this way if it weren’t for the Ancient Greeks
it’s more important for the future	...We never forget about our past since we must know where we were standing years ago	... World War II, that we have to remember to prevent them from happening again.
...(your own idea)	... it is extremely important to learn about one’s own country’s history.	... very fortunate to have this opportunity

A very common topic that is being discussed nowadays is whether schools should teach subjects that some may consider useless later in life. A clear example is history, since it is quite difficult to learn and does not help us in day-to-day activities.

However, many people do not realize the importance of it or that it affects our lives today. For example, our political system would not be this way if it weren’t for the Ancient Greeks, numerous politicians and wars who helped shape democracy and our constitution. Yet it is still thought that it’s useless.

In addition, it is very important that we never forget about our past since we must know where we were standing years ago. Moreover, there are some things, such as World War II, that we have to remember to prevent them from happening again. We should also know where we were standing a century ago: our origins, our identity. The more you learn about your ethnicity, the better.

All in all, I think that it is extremely important to learn about one’s own country’s history. Anyone who gets the chance to do this should not waste it, since they are very fortunate to have this opportunity to identify when society is going down perilous routes and how to contribute towards getting it back on track.

3. Your class has been discussing all about competitions. You have been asked to write an essay about how competitions affect people.

- Why competitions are necessary
- The negative effects of competitions.
- The proper view of competitions.

Write your essay using all the notes and elaborate on your ideas.

Identify and write the proper elaboration/example for the points in the table.

PROMPT	POINT	ELABORATION/ EXAMPLE
Why competitions are necessary	Competition is an extremely effective mechanism for motivation and improvement.
The negative effects of competitions.	Dishonest means Resort to using unlawful methods to win	Athletes use performance-enhancing drugs to give them an upper hand. Competition can result in a degradation of self-worth and integrity.
The proper view of competitions.	Competition can bring out the best in products and reveal the worst in people Competitions exist in all human activities. Students compete in school for better grades and rankings, while athletes try to beat their opponents to win trophies, fame, and recognition. Meanwhile, the commercial world is also a racing arena where entrepreneurs compete for more profit.

It is undeniable that competition is an extremely effective mechanism for motivation and improvement. Competitors have the tendency to develop abilities beyond expectations and improvements beyond our wildest dreams, even attaining record-breaking feats. These feats make us realize that humans are actually capable of phenomenal achievements. Also, achieving the desired results yields positive emotions which give individuals the impetus to reach higher goals.

Admittedly, in every competition, someone has to lose. Sadly, some non-achievers take risky measures, employ dishonest means and resort to using unlawful methods to win. The adoption of underhanded techniques is especially prevalent in the sporting world where athletes use performance-enhancing drugs to give them an upper hand. This shows how competition can result in a degradation of self-worth and integrity.

Undoubtedly, competition can bring out the best in products and reveal the worst in people. In reality, competitions will always exist, and no one is spared. We'll just have to put up with the good as well as the harmful effects of competitions and have a balanced view of competitions.

PROMPT	POINT	ELABORATION/ EXAMPLE
The symptoms of this illness
The effects of this illness
The preventive measures for this illness

Covid-19 has changed all our lives. This pandemic has affected how we live and work. I was diagnosed wi some of the symptoms were fever, cough, loss of taste and smell, tiredness, headache and sore throat.

The effects of this illness were having to quarantine and self isolate at home. I became very depressed as I was feeling all alone for over two weeks until I eventually got better.

Social distancing and frequent hand washing are very important to prevent this illness. In addition, being fully vaccinated helps to prevent the onset of severe symptoms. Some people are opting not to be vaccinated because they feel the vaccine is harmful to health although this has been proven otherwise through research.

As long as the majority of us are fully vaccinated and don't have severe symptoms, the hospitals will not be overwhelmed should there be another outbreak. We should all follow the Covid health guidelines and be responsible for ourselves
