Kuala Lumpur (Set 1)

Sample B1	Sample B2
To begin with, I would like to explore Kyoto, Japan. It is an interesting place because it has beautiful temples, traditional buildings and a rich culture. I would love to learn more about Japanese cultural heritage. Besides that, I would visit famous tourist attractions, try local food and take photographs of the beautiful scenery. I think these activities would give me a memorable experience. As for tourism, I think it can be good for the environment if tourists behave responsibly. For example, they should not litter and should follow the rules when visiting natural places. Personally, I believe tourism can also help people learn about the importance of protecting nature. All in all, I would love to visit Kyoto because I could enjoy its culture while learning something new.	To begin with, I would like to explore Sabah, Malaysia, especially the area around Mount Kinabalu. It is a fascinating scenic destination because it offers breathtaking scenery, rainforests and beautiful wildlife. I am also interested in its local culture and natural beauty. Besides that, I would explore the surrounding attractions, go hiking and take photographs of the landscape. I would also like to try some local food and learn more about the culture of the local communities. As for tourism, I think it can have both positive and negative effects on the environment. Too many tourists can produce waste and damage natural areas. However, responsible tourism can encourage people to protect these places and support the local economy. Personally, I believe sustainable tourism is important because people should be able to enjoy nature without destroying it. All in all, I would choose Sabah because it offers an exciting combination of nature, culture and adventure.

I would choose Sabah because it has amazing natural attractions and breathtaking scenery. For example, I would like to visit Mount Kinabalu and explore the rainforest.

Sample B1	Sample B2
To begin with, my favourite hobby is playing badminton. I usually play it after school or at weekends when I have some free time. I like this hobby because it is enjoyable and helps me stay active. It also allows me to spend time with my friends. For example, we sometimes play badminton together at a nearby sports centre. As for extracurricular activities, I think they are very important for students. They can help us develop teamwork, communication skills and confidence. For example, joining a school club allows students to meet new people and learn how to work together. Personally, I believe students should take part in activities outside the classroom while still focusing on their studies. All in all, having a hobby makes student life more balanced and enjoyable.	To begin with, my favourite hobby is photography. I usually do it at weekends or during my spare time, especially when I go out with my family or friends. I enjoy taking photographs of nature, food and interesting places. Besides that, I like photography because it is a fulfilling and creative activity. It allows me to express myself and capture memories that I can look back on later. For example, whenever I visit a new place, I take photographs of the scenery and interesting buildings. As for extracurricular activities, I believe they are important because they help students develop skills beyond academic subjects. Students can improve their communication, teamwork and leadership skills by joining clubs or sports teams. They can also make new friends and become more confident. Personally, I believe students should take part in activities that match their interests while maintaining a healthy balance with their studies. All in all, hobbies and extracurricular activities can make student life more meaningful and fulfilling.

Yes, I do. I enjoy reading novels because it is a relaxing way to spend my spare time. For example, I usually read for about 30 minutes before going to bed.

Today, I want to talk about a person who is important to me. To begin with, the person who is important to me is my mother. She is of medium height and has long, black hair. She also has a friendly smile. Next, the third point is why she is important to me. She is important to me because she always supports me. For example, she helps me when I have problems with my studies. Finally, the last point is if everyone should have a role model in their lives. Yes, I think everyone should have a role model because they can set a good example. For example, we can learn to be hardworking and kind from them. All in all, my mother is a very important person in my life.	Today, I want to talk about a person who is very important to me. To begin with, the first point is who it is. The person I want to talk about is my father, who has always been an important part of my life. Furthermore, the second point is how he looks. He is quite tall and has short, black hair. He usually dresses casually and has a friendly appearance. Next, the third point is why he is important to me. He is important because he always gives me support and useful advice. For example, whenever I feel worried about my studies, he encourages me to stay calm and do my best. Finally, the last point is if everyone should have a role model in their lives. Personally, I believe everyone should have a role model because they can motivate us and inspire us to improve ourselves. However, we should not copy everything they do because everyone is different. All in all, my father is someone I really look up to, and I hope to develop some of his positive qualities.
Yes, I do. The person who is important to me is my mother. To begin with, she always supports me and gives me good advice. Furthermore, she encourages me whenever I face problems with my studies.

Sample B1	Sample B2
Today, I want to talk about an environmental problem. To begin with, the first point is what the problem is. The environmental problem I want to talk about is air pollution. It is a serious problem that affects the environment and people's health. Furthermore, the second point is why it happens. It happens because of vehicle exhaust fumes and smoke from factories. Next, the third point is what people can do to help. People can use public transport, plant more trees and avoid burning rubbish. Finally yes, I think teenagers should be worried because pollution can affect our health and future. In conclusion, we should protect our planet.	Today, I want to talk about an environmental problem. To start with, the problem I want to discuss is plastic pollution. It happens when plastic waste ends up in rivers, beaches and the sea. One of the main reasons for this problem is that people use too many single-use plastic products. For instance, plastic bags and food containers are often thrown away after one use. When it comes to solutions, people should reduce plastic waste by using reusable bags and water bottles. They can also recycle and take part in clean-up activities. As far as teenagers are concerned, I believe they should be worried about environmental issues because pollution can harm animals and affect our future. By making small changes, we can help protect the environment. To sum up, everyone should play a part in keeping our planet clean.

There are several things I can do to help the environment. I can reduce plastic waste by using reusable bags and water bottles. Besides, I can also recycle paper and plastic instead of throwing them away.

Sample B1	Sample B2
To begin with, the volunteering work I did was cleaning up a local park. I picked up rubbish and helped to keep the area clean. Besides that, I did it last weekend with some of my classmates. As for why I volunteered, I wanted to help the environment and spend my free time doing something useful. I also enjoyed working with my friends. For example, we collected plastic bottles and food wrappers and put them into the correct bins. Personally, I believe volunteering should be included in the school's co-curricular syllabus. It can teach students to work as a team, help others and become more responsible. For example, students can join clean-up activities or charity events. All in all, volunteering is a useful experience for young people.	To begin with, the volunteering work I did was helping at a charity event organised by my school. I helped prepare food, arrange tables and welcome visitors. Besides that, the event was held a few months ago during the school holidays, so I had enough free time to participate. As for why I volunteered, I wanted to help people in need and gain some useful experience. I also wanted to improve my communication and teamwork skills. For example, I had to work with other students to make sure everything was ready before the event started. Personally, I believe volunteering should be included in the school's co-curricular syllabus because it teaches students important values such as responsibility, kindness and cooperation. It also allows them to understand the needs of their community. All in all, volunteering is a meaningful way for students to learn outside the classroom.
Yes, I would. I would like to help people in need because I want to make a difference in my community. For example, I would like to help at a food donation centre.
